What does this status mean?

The examining attorney has reviewed your application and determined that it is acceptable for publication. The application will then be published for opposition in the Official Gazette. Once published, any party who believes it may be damaged by the registration of your mark has 30 days from the date of publication to either oppose your registration or request an extension for opposition. Currently, no action is required from you.

Please click here for a glossary of USPTO trademark statuses to learn more. Most statuses other than ones having the words office action do NOT require any direct follow up.

What is this?

A status change alert is a free service offered through Trademarkia that provides you with an email whenever the U.S. Trademark office moves a filed trademark application to the next stage in the registration process. Most alerts other than ones having the words office action do NOT require any direct follow up. All U.S. trademark applications go through a variety of stages before they are fully registered with the government. You can contact Trademarkia at 877-794-9511 or at this email if you want to be connected with a law firm who can help you better understand the registration process or this particular status.

You can also add a link to this HACKWORKS trademark directly on your blog, Facebook, Twitter, or Google bookmarks:
